

Watch NFL Channel - Free Live TV

Week 3 of the NFL season is here, and on Thursday, Sept. 18, action gets started with a matchup of AFC East teams at Highmark Stadium in Orchard Park, N.Y. where the Buffalo Bills are hosting the Miami Dolphins.

This NFL game is scheduled to start at 8:15 p.m. EDT and will be broadcast on CBS in Miami and ABC in Buffalo, N.Y. Fans in those markets looking to watch can do so for free by using DirecTV, which offers a free trial, or FuboTV, which also offers a free trial as well as up to $30 off your first month. Paramount+ also offers a free trial and gives fans the option to watch games broadcast on CBS. SlingTV doesn't offer a free trial but has promotional offers available for streaming the game, and NFL+ airs all local market games, and NFL+ Premium allows fans to watch condensed game replays and all-22 coaches film.

Fans looking to watch this game in other markets can do so for free on Prime Video, which offers a free trial and access to Thursday Night Football as well as plenty of other content, including NBA and WNBA games, tons of documentaries across sports and a plethora of tv shows and movies.

The Bills are 2-0 and looking to take a stranglehold on the AFC East with another victory that would send the 0-2 Dolphins into a massive hole.

In Week 2, Buffalo picked up its first division win of the season in a 30-10 contest with the New York Jets. Running back James Cook rushed for 132 yards and two scores while quarterback Josh Allen only had to produce 207 total yards between passing and rushing.

Miami lost its home opener on Sunday and suffered its first division loss of the year, falling to the New England Patriots 33-27. It was the team's second straight game giving up 33 points, but there was a much better offensive performance as quarterback Tua Tagovailoa tossed for 315 yards, two scores and a pick with Tyreek Hill getting 109 yards , Jaylen Waddle getting 68 yards and a touchdown and running back De'Von Achane chipping in 92 receiving yards and a touchdown.
