Detroit Lions vs. Baltimore Ravens: How to Watch NFL Week 3
Monday Night Football

NFL Week 3 of the 2025 season closes with a must-watch Monday Night Football matchup as the Detroit Lions face the Baltimore Ravens on Monday, September 22, 2025, at M&T Bank Stadium in Baltimore, Maryland. Kickoff is set for 8:15 PM ET (6:15 AM BD Time, Tuesday).

This game features two playoff-caliber teams with strong storylines. The Lions, led by quarterback Jared Goff, are looking to solidify their standing in the NFC after an impressive start to the season. Meanwhile, the Ravens, under Lamar Jackson, continue to showcase one of the league's most dynamic offenses. With both teams eyeing division titles, this prime-time clash could carry major postseason implications.

How to Watch in the U.S.:

TV Broadcast: The game will air nationally on ESPN and ABC, ensuring wide access across cable and satellite providers. In the Baltimore market, local fans can tune in on WMAR Channel 2 (ABC Baltimore).

Streaming Options: Fans can stream the game live via the ESPN app or ABC.com, provided they log in with a TV provider. Cord-cutters can also watch by subscribing to live TV platforms like YouTube TV, Hulu + Live TV, or Fubo, all of which carry ESPN and ABC.

NFL+ and International Access:

Mobile viewers can stream the game through NFL+, while international fans can watch live through NFL Game Pass International on DAZN. In Australia, coverage will be available free on 7mate and 7plus.

With playoff-level intensity and two powerful offenses on display, the Lions vs. Ravens in Week 3 promises to be one of the standout games of the NFL season.
